Caregiver Support Program

Empowering caregivers through information, planning resources and financial assistance.

Who is eligible?

In general, all eligible care receivers may have a household income of up to 380% of the federal poverty level and have a primary unpaid caregiver to receive financial assistance. Additional eligibility requirements for each type of caregiver-care receiver relationship include:

Caregivers of older adults

Caregivers, 18 years of age or older, who are caring for an adult that is 60 years of age or older, or a person with dementia of any age.

Caregivers of adults with disabilities

Caregivers, 55 years of age or older, who are caring for an adult with disabilities.

Assistance for caregivers of relative adults and children

Older relatives caring for children

Non-parent relatives, 55 years of age or older, who are the primary caretakers of children living with them.

How it works?

PCA supports caregivers through:

- Financial assistance
- Care management
- Education and training
- Benefits counseling

Caregivers may receive up to $600 a month in reimbursement for caregiving services and supplies, and may also receive up to a lifetime maximum of $5,000 in housing modifications or assistive devices. Eligible reimbursements include:

Caregivers of older adults and individuals with disabilities

• medical supplies • home modifications • personal/respite care • emotional, legal, and financial counseling • and more
